

The index page features a simple user interface, comprising only an input field prompting users to enter their usernames.

Upon submission of a username, the web application retrieves data for the specified player, encompassing their last 20 games, from the RIOT Games API. Subsequently, the acquired data undergoes intricate function chaining to pinpoint specific information. Finally, the processed data are mapped to images, presenting the match history to the user.

